

General Cemetery Guidelines:

- Cremains do not need to be placed in a vault.
- One person's cremains may share a burial plot with a family member.
- Stone markers need to match the size and orientation of the rest of the cemetery and may only use images associated with the Roman Catholic faith. Stone markers need permission of cemetery staff before being placed in cemetery.
- No trees may be planted by individual graves. Plants and other objects placed on or near a grave need the permission of the cemetery staff. Glass items are especially dangerous and prohibited. The staff reserves the right to remove items.
- Mulch, ground covers, fencing, or edging is not allowed around any gravestones or graves.
- When a person purchases a plot, the cemetery retains title to the land and property. The purchaser acquires the right of burial.

Green Burial Section (presently only available at St. James the Apostle Cemetery):

Guidelines for the Green Burial Section:

In general, natural or "green" burial sites attempt to minimize the use of fossil fuels and chemicals and to retain the natural flora, fauna, and appearance of the site.

- When a person purchases a plot, the cemetery retains title to the land and property. The purchaser acquires the right of burial.
- Cremains may not be placed in the green section.
- A green burial cannot be mixed with a traditional burial.
- Opening and closing of a grave should be done by hand, when possible.
- Families may opt to dig the grave for their deceased family member.
- Markers must be natural stone and flush to the ground.
- No decorations are permitted in the green section.
- Artificial plants and containers are not allowed, nor is mulch or any kind of ground covering.
